Wins Look Magazine
Showman Medal

Phil Chakeres of Springfield, uncle of Jim Chakeres, owner of the Palace and State theaters here, has been awarded Look Magazine's medal for showmanship and community service.

The current issue of the magazine carries a picture of Chakeres as he appears today, a picture of the medal awarded on Bob Hope's radio program, another when he was 22 years of age, and a third when Chakeres opened his 49th showing Chakeres and his wife theater at Fairborn.

Phil Chakeres has visited his nephew here many times and is known to numerous local residents. At one time he was interested in one of the theaters here.

The Look article states that Chakeres came to America from Greece 51 years ago, and in 1908 took over a tiny nickelodeon in Springfield, thereby becoming one of the pioneer moving picture theater owners in America.

That was about the time the first nickelodeon was opened in Washington, D. C., in the room now occupied by Islay's store.

Chakeres Theaters, Inc., now controls 49 theaters in Ohio and Kentucky.

Phil Chakeres has not only made a success of the show business but is widely known for giving his time and money to promote his favorite hobby "the happiness of others."

Red Empire Cracks

Who is to be trusted? The man who constantly spouts the orthodox Stalin line? Is that not what an agent of the enemy would be expected to do? The most orthodox Communist can be suspected. But the unorthodox is even more suspect.

The infection of Titoism—the adulterant which one day may crumble the cement holding together the new Russian empire—continues to spread even as the fury of the purges mounts.

Vlado Clementis was trusted for a long time. He faithfully mouthed the Moscow peace campaign slogans. He faithfully accused the west of criminal designs. He faithfully praised Stalin. He ranted in an orthodox Stalinist way against western spies, terrorists and Titoists. Now he, too, is a Titoist in Communist eyes. He, too, is accused of having lost his love for Stalin.

Clementis was tainted. He had, during the war, served in the exile government in London. He was in New York for the United Nations meetings. Foolishly he went back, even when there were reports that he was fallen from grace.

Now he faces trial, and likely execution. He joins a horde of ghosts—Laslo Rajk of Hungary; Traicho Kostov of Bulgaria and many others who thought it possible to say no to the seat of the Soviet empire. Stalin's pronouncements are always busy, always distrustful. The slightest opposition is deviation. Deviation is death.

It will be argued that purges are in line with Bolshevik history and practice—that only the small, hard core of Communists can function as a disciplined unit. This is true in the main. But the difference between Lenin's hard core and Stalin's purge is this: Stalin steadily builds up a backlog of smoldering enemies, and the more fanatically he fights them, the more enemies he must root out from his subject provinces.

Today, not only in the satellite provinces, including east Germany, but in such countries as France and Italy, Moscow is introducing the "young commissar." This was evident in recent events in west Germany. It was evident in the admission of 15,000 "young" members into the party in France this month. This has been repeated throughout the satellite countries. The object is to achieve a militant corps of merciless young toughs so indoctrinated all of their conscious lives that they know no other loyalty than the seat of the empire, no rewards except what stem from there. These will be the tighteners of the Communist ranks.

Tractor Club Talks About Repairs Here

Members of the 4-H tractor club met Monday evening at the Denton Implement Co. to continue study on the various phases of tractor repair and maintenance.

The basic class studied sparkplugs, wiring and batteries. They were shown a picture on different types of plugs and their functions.

Following the movie two demonstrations were given. Gene Gustin and Roger Bonham gave the first demonstration on the setting of sparkplugs. Dicky Summers and John Merritt demonstrated on the correct way to clean a battery.

The second year's class studied the periodic servicing of air cleaners, while the third year members learned how to use belt power in running different types of farm machines.

After the classes members of the Denton Implement Co. served the group refreshments.

The next class meeting will be held at the Washington Implement Co. Monday evening Feb. 5.

teammate also of the accused Sherman White, LeRoy Smith and Adolph Bigos, who were then sophomores.

Miller is accused of contriving "to lose and to limit the margin of victory." Limiting the margin—or fixing the point spread between two teams—makes it possible for gamblers who are in on the deal to clean up on bets.

This 1948 LIU team had a comparatively poor record, winning 18 games and losing 12. However, Miller started both the previous seasons when LIU rang up identical 17-and-4 win-loss records. The 1946-47 team played in the National Invitation Tourney.

NO LAW IN OHIO
COLUMBUS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A state senator says Ohio lacks laws to cope with situations similar to New York City's basketball-gambling scandal.

So he asked the legislature last night to extend Ohio bribery law to cover amateur sports, with penalties up to a $10,000 fine and 5 years in prison.

Statutes now apply only to bribery of professional and senior sports figures who agree to make their teams lose.

Sen. Anthony J. Celebrezze (D-Cuyahoga) proposed expanding the law to include amateurs and all athletes who agree to keep their teams' margin of victory to a few points.

Most wagering on college basketball is not on the winner or loser, but on the number of points between the winning and losing scores.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Grains lost their early gains toward the close of today's Board of Trade session. Midway through trading some short covering and commercial buying displaced opening easiness, but there was lack of follow-through.
Shortly before the close liquidation in some deliveries weakened the tone. Corn lost ground when traders took to the selling side of the expectation of increased movement of high moisture corn from farms before warm weather developed.

PUSH-BUTTON PRODUCTION

at the switchboard

● Just by pushing down these buttons at her switchboard, the long distance operator now "dials" telephones hundreds of miles away... making cross-country connections at the speed of a local call.

This amazing equipment is helping operators handle the terrific upsurge of calls resulting from the nation's high-speed defense program. As always, the telephone is number one expeditor in getting jobs underway and coordinating production. Every tank, plane or ship turned out for defense is loaded with telephone calls.

Expanded toll dialing is just one of many improvements in telephone service since VJ Day. Because the telephone company has been planning and working to expand and improve service for peacetime demand, your telephone system is much better prepared to meet the challenge of stepped-up defense production. It takes a strong progressive telephone organization to keep American communications growing and improving... always ready to meet the challenge of emergency, whether individual or national in scope.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP)—Tougher for a while, then better, if there's no war.

That's the look into the future offered last night by Charles E. Wilson, boss of the defense program, in a radio talk.

His speech served a double purpose: it was a kind of pep talk to the nation and it got Mr. Wilson's views across.

Apparently, he thought it was time for him to put them across, for more than a week Wilson has been under attack by labor leaders who accused him of freezing labor out of an important say-so in the defense program.

He didn't try to squabble with them in his talk. But he answered them indirectly by saying: "we are searching for the best talent available to help in this national effort."

In this city a lot of important men have disappeared into oblivion when the ground was cut out from under them through attacks by important groups in the country.

Wilson's prestige and authority was certainly being rocked by the labor attitude toward him. He probably decided he wasn't going to sit idly by while his stature was whittled down.

He took the bull by the horns and marched up to a microphone to speak his own piece for himself, which would indicate that Wilson wants to and intends to stay around here a while.

He called for equality of sacrifice and pointed out some of the usual points which have been emphasized a number of times since the defense program started:

1. Building up defenses so well that Russia will be afraid to attack.

2. Building up at the same time our capacity for producing arms to such a point that defense output can be poured out on a tremendous scale if war actually comes.

3. At the same time, by expanding our capacity for producing, not only be able to produce defense stuff for a number of years but at the same time produce a lot of stuff for civilians.

No. 3 will have to wait a bit until No. 1 and No. 2 are taken care of. While that's happening, there'll be less for civilians.

There was nothing new in this. But then Wilson added some points to show what he-meanting the government--has in mind in terms of years.

For example: for a while there'll be less aluminum. But by 1953 there ought to be -- because plants for producing aluminum are being expanded -- enough aluminum for defense needs and as much aluminum for civilians as they had in 1950.

Another example: for a couple of years a lot of steel is going into defense, which means a lot less for civilians. Meanwhile, plants for producing steel are being expanded. And by 1953 there ought again to be for civilians as much steel as they had before the Korean war.

This was not a dreary picture which Wilson drew. Instead, he tried to show that this country was going to develop itself enormously, so that it could take care of defense needs and civilian needs too.

Since most top men in the government don't go off in a corner and write their own speeches, it's taken pretty much for granted here that they have help or ghost-writers.

Whoever was responsible for Wilson's talk did a pretty expert job. It was sharp and clear, whether or not you liked what he said. This business of important men

Senior Girl at Bloomingburg Tops in Quiz

Elizabeth Iden
First; Scores
228 Out of 300

Eight students in Fayette County can consider themselves pretty smart nowadays. They are the students who made grades in the upper 25 percent of the Ohio Scholarship Tests given to 31 graduating seniors in the county. The tests were held in the Washington C. H. High School library Feb. 9.

Elizabeth Lee Iden of Bloomingburg made the highest score with 228 out of a possible 300 points. Harold Knecht of Jeffersonville with 197 points ranked second.

Robert Lewis and Norman Pope, both of Washington C. H. High School tied for third place with scores of 194 each. Fifth and sixth places were Jane Ellen Terrell of Washington C. H. High School and William Coe of Jeffersonville.

Two students, William Case and Ellis Miller, tied for seventh with a score of 182. Both are from WHS.

Thirty-one students originally took the tests, covering five major fields of study. The tests are designed to show the student his aptitude for college work. A number of colleges, universities and business schools use these test scores in partially determining the awarding of scholarships.

History, English, mathematics, getting help on speeches, is not a reflection on the I. M. in fact, it's a method started long ago.

George Washington's Farewell Address which was trotted out and read around the country on his birthday last week, Feb. 22, wasn't the work of Washington alone. He got Alexander Hamilton to help him.

science and reading were the five subjects covered by the tests and a complete scoring of the different sections has been sent to W. J. Hilly, Superintendent of the County Schools, as well as certificates of award which are to be presented to the winners.

Hilly was also appointed head of the testing committee by Dr. Ray G. Wood director of the scholarship tests. The committee included G. H. Biddle, Bloomingburg superintendent, Arthur E. Wohlers, principal of WHS and Stephen Brown, city superintendent of schools.

The scores made by these students will also determine whether they will get to compete with students in other counties for district honors.

Submarine Killer Is Ready for Test

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP)—The navy will launch the first modern anti-submarine submarine—a small and deadly killer of its own kind—on Friday.

The K-1 (K for killer) will go down the ways at the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn.

Packed with the latest in electronic and sound detection gear and underwater weapons, the K-1 is only 195 feet long and displaces only 750 tons. This is small compared with the big fleet type submarines—311 feet, and 1,500 tons.

However, the mission of the killer sub is not to roam far out in search of naval and merchant ships but to hunt down and sink enemy submarines. Just about everything concerning the K-1, except her dimensions, is rated secret by the navy.

74-Year-Old Woman Writes Poetry Now

HADACOL Supplies Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron Which Her System Lacked

Did you ever feel so good that you wanted to sing about it? Mrs. Della Burrows, Route 1, Zionsville, Indiana, feels so good nowadays that she's writing poetry about it. Mrs. Burrows is feeling that way because she found that HADACOL with its Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron was just what her system needed.

Mrs. Burrows wanted everyone to know just how highly she thought of HADACOL and she expressed it in this little poem:

"Well, here is my age, if you must know, 74 years young. Hair white as snow. A great many times I've heard people say I'm taking HADACOL every day! Just try a bottle and you will find it's what you've been looking for all this time. So, I got me a bottle and drank it all up and soon felt times I've heard people say 'I'm on my fourth bottle of HADACOL. I feel so much better. I sleep like a baby, eat like a pig, and if anyone should ask me, I could dance a jig.'"

Only HADACOL gives you that "Wonderful HADACOL Feeling"—accept no substitutes. Buy the genuine HADACOL today. 1951, The LeBlanc Corporation.

College Athletics Endangered by Scandal

Have big time sports in major universities become so highly commercialized that they are endangering the future of these schools? This is a matter which is being commented upon freely in many places, particularly since the basketball scandals in New York.

Unlike some other colleges who players have been involved in the current basketball scandals in New York, Long Island University has immediately adopted a drastic cure. The university's board of trustees has decided to cancel all intercollegiate athletic activities and to return to strictly intramural competition.

The complete abandonment of intercollegiate competition is rough on the great majority of athletes, who are honest and loyal to their schools. The ruling penalizes a great many for the weakness of a few. But the dirty gambling mess which has infecting big-time collegiate basketball is like a cancerous growth. Drastic surgery is the only sure way of bringing the sport back to a state of health.

Everyone would hate to see intercollegiate football and intercollegiate basketball disappear. They have become a colorful and exciting part of American life. But it is becoming a serious question whether many colleges would not be better off without sports when they have grown to such a scale that they breed bribery, dishonesty and hypocrisy.

What sort of preparation for life is being provided by those colleges which permit high-paid professionals to play on their teams under the thin mask of amateurship? What is one to think of the motives of university heads who put big gate receipts above the protection of their start athletes from the conniving of gangsters and gamblers?

LIU has made its choice and it is a courageous one. Big-time basketball could be cleaned up in a hurry if other colleges would follow its lead and retreat to the campuses as soon as corruption raises its head.

The institutions which have been professionalizing college football under cover would also do well to take warning from the black mess into which basketball has fallen.

Politics As Usual

No newspaperman would ever charge government officials with political "extortion" unless he really had the "goods" on them. This week, the editor of a Mississippi paper reported that several folks in his neck of the woods were offered jobs under the new "stabilization" program. There was just one little string attached. They were asked to kick in from $300 to $400 to the division of the State Democratic committee of "Old Miss" pledged to Mr. Truman.

Of course there is a political feud down in the deep south, and the people who are anti-Truman are doing their darndest to hurt his administration. Nevertheless, and discounting all the evidence, it is going to be pretty hard for Mr. DiSalle and his boys in Washington to laugh this one off.

Plain fact is that our "Freeze" has turned into nothing but a quick "Thaw", and prices and wages are going to keep on rising until someone in Washington has the courage to speak up and give a simple order that doesn't require the supreme court to interpret it.

Want A Piece of the White House?

By Ed Cragg
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

FORT MYER, Va., Feb. 27—(AP)—Yes, you still can get a piece of the White House to put on your mantel. Or make into bookends. Or stuff into that closet you've been meaning to straighten out when you got around to it.

But don't be in a hurry.

Write in if you want to, but next week will do just as well, the week after next would be better and some time late next month would be better still.

That's the word from a hard-pressed little organization known as the Commission Renovation of the Executive Mansion, which finds itself in the mail-order business of selling the public such things as bricks, nails and pieces of wood from the house where our president lives.

These things are the left-overs from the big job of rebuilding the White House to keep it from tumbling down on the head of the present occupant. There are tons of stuff which would be just junk if it came from most old buildings. Coming from the White House, it's a mass of historical souvenirs.

With some misgivings, the commission decided to sell these presidential keepsakes on a non-profit basis. It announced this plan in the middle of last month. So far, some 30,000 inquiries have flooded in and they're still coming. A staff of eight people here at Fort Myer, across the Potomac from Washington, is trying to cope with them.

Naturally, these people are behind in their work. They'd just as soon nobody else wrote in for a while. And there, doesn't seem to be any hurry about writing. There's a big pile, tons upon tons, of historic rubble to disposed of, and it's not likely that late comers will find it all gone.

Among those who already have written in, more want brick than want anything else. This is lucky because lots of bricks are available -- 200,000 or so. They're not in the best of condition but they'll do nicely for paperweights. Or, for around $100, you can buy enough White House bricks to face a fireplace.

All told, there are 13 kinds of souvenirs for sale. Among them are pieces of stone that could be carved into bookends, small pieces of hand-split lath that could be cut into letter-openers, and square nails that sound like just the thing for driving into square holes.

Applications for these trinkets have come from all parts of the country. The largest number -- from such north-central states as nobody knows why -- have come Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin.

If you want a White House souvenir yourself, wire to "The Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion, Fort Myer, Va." Don't send any money -- they'll mail you an application blank when they can get around to it. The blank will tell you what's to be had and how much it will cost.

Prices range from 25 cents up. All merchandise sold "as is," and most of it is in pretty sad shape. Terms: cash in advance, after you've received the application form. Don't send currency -- a postal note or money order will do. You pay the postage. All the money that comes in goes for packing and other costs.

One last word: don't say I sent you. There are a couple of girl clerks, up to their eyelashes in letters, who would never forgive me for drumming them up more business.

What War Can Cost Is Astounding By George Sokolsky

The 1952 budget, which may not be passed as is, amounts to $71,564,000,000. That compares with the 1951 budget of $47,210,000,000. Receipts for 1951 were estimated at $44,512,000,000; for 1952 at $55,138,000,000. That means that the government will run short about $16,456,000,000, which will have to be added to the national debt.

Of the $71,594,000,000 which the government plans to expend in 1952, $41,421,000,000 will be the military services.

The president is employing the double budget method, which means that he adds to the budget separate appropriations, loan and contract authorizations part of which will be spent in 1952 and part in subsequent years. These bring the amount up to $94,400,000,000, to which is to be added an additional $4,100,000,000 that is to liquidate contract authorizations approved by Congress in prior years, for which he needs funds. The total will be $98,500,-

This is the third largest appropriation in American history, being exceeded only by 1943 and 1944 when we were actually at war and spending like mad against time. No one in those years could tell how long the war would last or where we would be hit and therefore we spent our money on the assumption that by that means we would save American lives. It was war budgeting, frankly so accepted.

Then this same administration, which is now asking for so much, demobilized our armed forces, destroyed billions of dollars of usable materials, drove tanks into the ocean, put our fleet in moth balls, sold salvage goods everywhere, left deserted dumps of supplies -- and now it all is to be started all over again. And, unfortunately for us, it must be done all over again.

Meanwhile, the president wants to use our money to play politics as usual. So the items for social security, welfare and benefits rise in 1952 over 1951 by $100,000,000, although there certainly would be a cut, in view of the fact that we cannot afford luxuries at a time when the people are being taxed beyond their capacity to pay taxes. The Hoover reports are ignored.

Similarly, the president advocates a vast increase in socialist power development, which not only adds to the citizen's tax burdens but takes off the tax roll government-owned corporations. These tax-free corporations, owned by the government, are luxuries which we cannot afford.

The most amazing fact about this budget is that it includes a concealed Brannan plan which the president knows that the country and the Congress reject but which turns up constantly like a privately minted bad penny. Nobody has yet been able to estimate the actual cost of the Brannan plan. To add that onto a war budget is sheer financial madness.

The constitutional responsibility for the budget is in Congress not in the presidency. Congress cannot dodge this responsibility. It alone has the power of the purse and must stand before the electorate in 1952 to answer for its conduct. The wasteful expenditure of the taxpayers' money is unjustified at any time. It becomes criminal at a time of rising prices, depreciated currency and war expenditures.

Congress has the final word in all this and should speak loud and clear and with a sense of responsibility to the electorate.

One of the tricks developed during the new deal was to bring noble brass before a congressional committee who solemnly declare that they always need more and more money. To doubt the word or impugn the wisdom of brass is tantamount to treason in the eyes of many. So, we bow our heads and bend our knees and wait for the years to pass when we learn, from the course of events, that what we were told just ain't so. It would be interesting to go over all the congressional hearings since 1939 to compare statements made with the facts as they have disclosed themselves in due course.

Congressional investigations need to be conducted not to confuse the people. For instance, when Senator Connally sent his vulgarly insulting invitation to Herbert Hoover, requesting Mr. Hoover to attend his committee's investigation of the "great debate," he disclosed a desire not to get at the truth but to offend Mr. Hoover. He got a sharp response for his pains. Yet, the congressional committee exists for an examination of all the data to lay a truthful foundation for legislation.

Diet and Health See Doctor at Once If You Have Piles

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

From time to time many people are bothered by hemorrhoids or piles. Unfortunately they are inclined to try home remedies rather than to consult the doctor, first because they always hope that the most recent discomfort will be the last and second because they do not realize how simply relief may be obtained.

Hemorrhoids are in reality nothing more than overenlarged veins in the lower part of the rectum. For more than 80 years they have been treated by injection, but it is only during the last few decades that the method has been perfected.

Freedom From Pain

The injection treatment has a number of advantages, such as freedom from pain, no confinement to bed, no hospitalization, little or no loss of time from work, and prompt relief or symptoms. The mere fact that symptoms are relieved does not mean that the condition is cured. Hence, treatment must be continued until the hemorrhoids have disappeared.

The purpose of the injections is to produce irritation to that scar tissue forms and obliterates the dilated veins. A number of different solutions are used for this purpose, such as those containing quinine and urea.

Injection Method

It would appear that only those patients who have internal hemorrhoids which are bleeding and which may protrude from the rectum, should be treated by the injection method. Those who have internal hemorrhoids with cracking of the lining membrane and ulcer formation or inflammation should not be treated by injection but by operation.

In some such patients, however, operation may not be advisable because of other conditions, such as extreme old age, diabetes, heart disease, or tuberculosis. Here injection will serve at least to relieve hemorrhoids if not to eliminate them altogether.

General Rule

Usually one or two of the veins are injected at each treatment. Care must be taken not to inject too much solution, since doing so will cause damage to the surrounding tissues. As a general rule, from six to ten treatments are required, depending upon the number and size of the hemorrhoids. After treatment, the patient is told to avoid unnecessary straining or exercise.

If the proper technique in giving the injections is used, complications of any type are rare. The only measure which may be of help in the prevention of hemorrhoids is the avoidance of constipation and strain to have a bowel movement.

Hemorrhoids often develop during pregnancy but may become smaller in size after delivery of the baby.

Charge of Big Army Is Denied by Russia

MOSCOW, Feb. 27—(AP)—Russia told Britain during the weekend that she has less than half as many men under arms as the western bloc three. She added that she was ready to negotiate her differences with the British.

These statements were made in a note, published yesterday, repeating previous Soviet charges that the Atlantic government "crudely tramples" on the 1942 Anglo-Soviet alliance by joining the Atlantic coalition "aimed directly against the U. S. S. A."

The note declared that the forces of Britain, France and the United States total more than 5,000,000 men and that Soviet forces are less than half the size.

Observers here regarded as significant this indication Russia counts only about 2,500,000 men in her navy, air force and army. It is the nearest she has come in several years to offering any figures on her military strength.

Police said the boys, whose last name was reported as Anderson, lived near the river. They apparently had been playing in the boat.

Progress Is Being Made Here With Civilian Defense Set-up

Fayette County is regarded as one of the leading rural counties in Ohio in making definite preparations and progress in setting up an active civilian defense organization.

The county commissioners named Capt. C. V. Sexton, an army veteran of long experience, as county director. Sexton, who is rural mail carrier at Washington C. H. post office, is thoroughly trained in organization methods through a long service with the Ohio National Guard in riots and similar emergencies in years past.

More than a score of meetings have been held by Sexton with various groups. He has named six assistants and advisors who head up such activities as information and communication; training personnel; transportation, housing and supplies; health facilities; first aid work; auxiliary police, firemen and highway patrol; an air observation group composed of war veteran pilots and others who have experience in aeronautics; various groups of women who will aid in these branches of service and ward organizations whose members will act as air raid wardens and rescue squads.

These ward organizations are broken up so that one person can handle one or two blocks of residences.

Auxiliary Services

The Boy Scouts also are being organized for messenger and errand service.

In addition, the sheriff is co-operating by naming 20 special deputies to help in all phases of these preparations throughout the villages and rural districts.

Village mayors and township trustees are being brought into the picture with special assignments

Bond Sales in County Decline

Also Down over State in General

Richard P. Rankin, Fayette County savings bonds chairman, announced today that sales of Series E Bonds during January totalled $25,012.

Sales for the same month a year ago were $42,693. Sales of Series G Bonds totalled $4,000.

His statement followed an announcement at Columbus that sales for Ohio totalled $23,162,109, as contrasted with January, 1950 sales of $25,974,699. Although sales for the state were 10.9 percent under last year, total national E bond sales were 14.8 percent under January 1950.

Meanwhile, final congressional action was awaited on the pending legislation which would authorize holders of E bonds to retain them for another ten years after the original maturity date with a comparable interest return for the second ten years.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder in announcing the proposal to Congress emphasized that although bond holders would be offered this premium, they still would be permitted to cash in their bonds any time after 60 days following the original purchase date.

He said also that the bonds now would be offered as "defense" Bonds. Since 1946, they have been called "Savings" Bonds; during the Second World War: "War" Bonds.

Infantry Chorus Coming Here Gets Columbus Acclaim

Directors of the Community Concert series here are bursting with pride over the acclaim given the de Paur Infantry Chorus concert in Columbus Friday night, for the association has signed a "hold" contract for this nationally-known chorus on next years concert program.

"Memorably fine choral concert," "choral singing of exceptional quality" were comments made by Columbus music critics after hearing the 30-voice chorus of World War II veterans sing at Memorial Hall.

The next attraction on this year's Community Concert series will be Wednesday, February 28 at 8:15 P. M., when Carolyn Long, beautiful and talented lyric soprano, appears on the Washington High School stage.

Unique Music Maker To Come To Church Here on Wednesday

Wilbur Fish, nationally known entertainer of churches and school groups, will bring his musical glasses, London Cricket Bells, musical saw and vibra harp to Washington C. H. next Wednesday night.

He will perform before the group which will attend the monthly fellowship dinner in Fellowship Hall, Grace Methodist Church. A covered dish dinner, to be held at 6:30 P. M. Wednesday, will precede the entertainment, scheduled for 7:45 P. M.

Fish has presented programs in churches, schools and before service organizations in 42 states during the past 18 years. He has traveled nearly 900,000 miles and has presented more than 3,000 programs.

His musical glasses consist of 45 individual tones, making it the largest set in the world. Some are kept in tune without water, but many have been tuned by the addition of the correct amount of water. Individually tuned resonators or tubes amplify the music, which is caused by the rubbing of fingers around the edge of the glass.

The only set of London Cricket Bells in the world will also be used. The instrument was under water for two days during the flood at Portsmouth. It is operated by fish turning cranks.

He also uses a set of 32 row shaped bells which have been filed to give the correct tones.

A set of Swiss four-in-hand bells is played by the flipping of the bells in different directions to get certain ones to respond while the others remain silent.

He also uses a musical saw and vibra harp.

More Ohio Women Than Men at Last

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP)—For the first time in U. S. census history, women outnumbered men in last spring's head count. The ratio: 1,000 women to 981 men.

This was one of the points in a report on the 1950 census made public Saturday night by the census bureau. Among the others:

The number of children under 10 years old increased 40 percent.

In the same decade, the number of persons over 65 increased 37 percent.

Two out of every three Americans over 14 are married.

During the 12 months which preceded the census, about one-sixth of the population moved from one house to another.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 —(AP)—Federal Defense Administrator Millard F. Caldwell says he believes Russia "can deliver a fatal attack" any day it wants.

Caldwell gave his views yesterday on Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's National Broadcasting Com-

Letters To Editor

Jeffersonville, Ohio
Feb. 27, 1951

Editor
Record-Herald

Dear Sir:

I read your editorials and find them very interesting.

I also read the letter to you from "A Puzzled Man." It was an excellent letter, and I sent it to a nephew in Cincinnati who is a veteran of the second World War.

I am sick and tired of government waste, spending and wars of the past 18 years. And, apparently, "the end is not yet."

Editor
Record-Herald

Dear Sir:

I hate to be a shouter
I always long for peace
But the wheel that does the squeaking

Is the wheel that gets the grease

Not long ago, there was printed in your paper an article concerning a new office being created in this county for the purpose of appraising property for taxation.

Now the working of this office was stated so vague that it has gotten a lot of people "confused."

I am writing this letter, asking that this matter be more thoroughly explained, as well as the present method that we are using.

I feel that we who pay the bill should be given a year to study the two methods and decide just what is the better plan. And, then, by our own rights, we should be allowed to decide it at our voting polls.

I admit I am "a confused person," but one thing I do know—I am completely fed up on "closed doors," "emergencies" and "taxes" etc. I feel very much that faith, honesty and statesmanship is at a terrible low ebb in this country of ours.

(Signed)
Confused One

(Editor's Note: The above letter was written by a woman, the wife of a prominent Fayette County farmer, who requested anonymity. Her signed letter is on file at the Record-Herald office.)

(We regret that the report of Auditor Ulric Acton's proposal to the county commissioners was, vague and that it left "Confused One" confused. As Auditor Acton brought out in his statement before the commissioners, the county would employ an appraiser for real estate. It would be his job to see that all property is listed at a fair value. Briefly, it would be the appraiser's responsibility to wipe out the inequities in valuations. The purpose would be for every property owner to bear his full share of the tax load.)

(The head of the county affairs division of the state Department of Taxation has said these inequities do exist. The appraiser also would keep the tax duplicate up to date, thus making the reappraisal every six years as required by law a mere routine matter. (The county commissioners have taken the proposal under advisement.)

English Teacher Speaks To Delta Kappa Gamma Members Monday Evening

Mrs. Howard S. Harper was a charming hostess to the Alpha Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma at her home on Monday evening. The spacious high-ceilinged rooms and splendid furnishings completed the gracious atmosphere of the home. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Delma Hilty, Miss Margaret Gibson, and Miss Ruth Stecher.

Mrs. Olive Prosch, program chairman, presented Mrs. Audrey Williams of Ebbw Vale, Wales, English exchange teacher to the Greenfield schools, who was the magnetic speaker of the evening. Mrs. Williams took her journey from the story of her journey from Britain to America and the later intimate experiences which began in 1949 with a young girl's dream of the adventure of teaching school in a foreign land. She told how she and her girl friend, joined with enthusiasm, joined a party of young teachers on the big liner the Queen Mary, bound for America.

From there on, her enthralled listeners of the D.K.G. traveled with her in spirit on a day spent at the UN, and later in New York and Washington D. C. They felt with her the need of a family

Hamilton Rated No.1 Among Ohio Cagers

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Feb. 27—(P)—Hamilton's Big Blue cagers are over the first hurdle in the state class A high school race which Ohio's sports writers pick 'em to win.

Coach Warren Scholler's quintet zoomed over Cincinnati Hughes by 63-37 last night in the opening round of the southwestern district meet at Cincinnati, although little Robin Freeman of the losers led the scoring with 20 points.

And today, in the final pre-tourney poll, the state's sports editors again have Hamilton in the top spot of the Associated Press ratings, with Findlay's fancy, undefeated Trojans holding the second berth.

There was little tourney action last night, but the "lose and out" competition of more than 500 class A and class B clubs will blaze brightly the rest of the week. Twenty class B tournaments are under way, along with 19 in class A, with the state finals just a month away.

In the class B poll, in which voting was sparse this week, Corning slipped into first place, passing Deshler which had clung to the lead most of the preliminary campaign.

FROM HERE and there: Frank Edwards of Upper Arlington came up with a 46-point spree, a new school record as Columbus Academy was routed 89-34 last week...Columbus East won the city league title with 12 in a row, London and Marysville split the mid-six honors with 9-1, Grandview took the Central Buckeye crown with 10-1, and Columbus St. Charles is the Central Catholic winner with 8-0.

Marshall of Highland County won 24 straight games, including four in the country tournament, but Commissioner H. W. Emswiler ruled the school used a couple of ineligible players and the first 20 wins will be forfeited...the games were forfeited because, several year ago, some of the players—then in junior high—appeared against reserve teams and lost a year of eligibility. But Marshall won the Highland County tourney anyway, without the disputed boys, and is still in the district scrap.

Springfield's state champions are beginning to roll, just as they did a year ago near tournament time...the Wildcats whipped Washington C. H. 86-47 last week, their high of the season.

Miller City, the class B state champ, won the consolation round in the Putnam County tournament to remain in the district scrap. The Midgets came up with a 24-point third period to whip Vaughnsville 50-45.

Here's how Ohio's sports editors rate the state's high school basketball teams as the dash into sectional tournament play (votes on 10-9-8-etc. basis):

Kentucky at Top Of College Rating

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—(P)—With one week left, Kentucky is firmly entrenched as the No. 1 college basketball team in the country.

The Wildcats again topped the Associated Press poll today, and they figure to be in front this time next week, when the final returns are in.

Oklahoma A & M placed second to Kentucky, but the Aggies lost considerable stature last night when they dropped a 51-50 decision to fifth-ranked Bradley.

The rest of the top ten consisted of Columbia (3), Kansas State (4), Bradley (5), Illinois (6), Indiana (7), North Carolina State (8), St. John's (8) and St. Louis (10).

Three Rassles Scheduled Here For Thursday Night at Armory

As was promised, "rasslin'" will return to Washington C. H. Thursday evening at 8:30 P. M. at the Armory. Company M of the ONG will sponsor this second card which features two matches for men and one match with the gals.

This time the gals will be Mars Bennett and Cora Combs who will go two falls out of three in the semi-final match of the evening.

Lone Eagle

The main event will find Lone Eagle facing Cris Belkis for two falls out of three. Lone Eagle has his scalp up over the fact that everyone seems to be copying his name in rassling. If the truth were known, according to Lone Eagle, everyone is cashing in on his name. He says he is the first Eagle on the scene.

Belkis, who hails from Lynn, Mass., is billed as coming from England where he grunted and groaned for the monocol crowd while in the air forces.

Joe Wolfe and Billy Venable

Man Here Lands Six Pound Carp

Willard Holdren and William E. Smith, city firemen, went fishing in Sugar Creek Monday and Smith landed three fish, the largest of which was a 6 pound 13 ounce carp.

"It was the first real fishing I ever did," William said in telling about his catch. The other two fish landed were two and one pounders.

Willard didn't mention his catch.

Good Hope Cagers First Tourney Game Set for Saturday

Good Hope's Mad Anthonys drew a tough but not impossible assignments in the Southeastern Class B district tourney at Waverly. They will play the winner of the New Boston-Southeastern game Saturday March 3 at 8 P. M.

Southeastern of Ross County won 14 games and lost three on their regular season play and New Boston, just outside Portsmouth, won 11 of their games and lost nine.

New Boston, however, knocked off one of the top teams in the district when they beat Miniford whose record is 22 wins and the lone loss.

Good Hope drew what amounts to the bye in the first round of tournament play--that is, the Mad Anthonys will not go into action until one of two teams in the bracket has been eliminated. In this case, the two are New Boston and Southeastern. Good Hope will take on the winner.

Places in the tourney brackets were drawn Monday afternoon at Waverly and Coach Paul Bakenhester represented the Fayette County champions.

The tourney will get underway Feb. 28 and will last to March 10, when the final and consolation games will be played.

Other games to be played the same night as Good Hope will be the winner of the Bainbridge-Seaman game playing Frankfort

Golden Gloves On in Chicago

Approximately 100 bouts are scheduled among the welterweight, middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight classes in a three-ring punching circus that will complete the preliminary battling among the best amateur boxers from 42 centers.

Tomorrow night the field in all eight classes will be trimmed to size for the March 9 semi-finals and finals at the stadium.

Laws Are Broken To Escape Draft?

HAMILTON, Feb. 27—(P)—The Butler county grand jury was recalled today to deal with 70 cases, most of them burglaries.

Prosecutor Jackson Bosch, noting that most of the 45 defendants are in their twenties and eligible for the draft, said he will pay particular attention to that angle.

He said reports were current that some young men had committed crimes to escape call into the service.

Fifty of the 70 cases involved thievery in some form, Bosch declared.

There were only 25 cases before the grand jury when it held its regular January session.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

WHEN QUINT reached the yard they found that the hull had been slid to the water's edge where it waited for the ceremony of the christening. Erron was painting the name on the bow. Joe and Bill, the French-Canadians, were laying more greased logs under it. Dan stood at one side, watching the work, an unwonted brightness in his old eyes.

Jennet went at once to Erron's side. "Oh, let me put in one letter, please," she begged.

"Sure you can," Erron gave her his brush.

Very carefully, she shaped the T. To Quint, watching, they looked very young, standing there, close together, the bright sun on their bare heads, their faces tense with the importance of the moment. For such as them was the promise.

"Did ye bring the bottle?" asked Dan, suddenly solemn himself.

Quint produced it.

Erron had put together a rough platform on which Jennet could stand. He stayed at her side, ready to help her up to it. Joe and Bill went to the hawsers that held the hull back on the shelving beach. Now Dan took charge. He inspected the logs, the position of the hull, shouted to Joe and Bill to keep their eyes open. To Jennet, "When I count to three, missy, you smash the bottle. And you, Erron, get her off o' there quick lest the hull career over it." Sweat stood out in big beads on his face.

Quint felt himself sweating, too. "One," Dan's voice was hoarse. "Two." There was a pause, then he belowered, "Three."

Joe and Bill's axes swung in wide arcs. Released, the hull quivered, lurched forward. Jennet's arm lifted, the bottle crashed against the bowstem. At the same moment, almost, Erron caught her from behind and swung her to the ground.

She leaned against him, dizzily, her face against the rough cloth of his sleeve. "Did I—I was frightened—did it break?"

She was trembling and Erron's arm, supporting her, tightened its hold. He had voice, now. He said, "Pretty as anything, ma'am! The stuff went all over the bow. And look at her now!"

Jennet drew away from him, looked at the hull. It was rocking a little in the water, but afloat. "It's beautiful!" she cried.

"Wait till her mast's set and she's rigged."

"I've made a good-luck pennant. Uncle Quint says it must fly always from a masthead."

She drew the package from a deep pocket of her skirt, gave it to Erron to open.

He held the bright silk in his rough hands, looking down at it with a kind of reverence. Then he looked at her and in his eyes was something of the reverence with which he had looked at the flag. It confused Jennet and to hide her confusion, she affected an air of amusement. "Why, it isn't fine at all, Mr. Piers! I made it out of an old dress—it's really very crudely made! And please don't call me 'ma'am.'"

She saw Erron's face redden deeply and knew she had hurt him. She had not meant to do that. But Quint was calling to them to go up to the cabin; there was no time for her to make amends for it.

In the cabin Dan brought out brandy. "A toast must be drunk to the ship. 'Let missy, here, say it, if it pleases her,' suggested Dan. It did please Jennet. She lifted her glass. "A blessing on the ship, safe voyages, and safe returns."

Erron had gulped down his brandy and gone out of the cabin. He was nowhere around when they mounted the horses to go back to the tavern. They rode mostly in silence. The hull in the water must attract attention. Well, he was ready to talk about it. He must tell Rhoda, first.

A few days after the launching Quint found Rhoda sitting in the kitchen with her knitting.

"I'm starting a new enterprise," he told her. "It's been in my mind for some time and it is beginning to take shape now. The other day we launched a brig at Dan's shipyard—bigger than any on these waters. I'm negotiating for its first cargo. We'll build others like it. In a few years we'll have a fleet of em, carrying cargoes westward, sailing back with their hulls full."

Rhoda lifted her head. "And who is 'we'?"

"I suppose I meant you and me. Dan Piers and his son have an interest in the enterprise—they've put in the work on the ship and I—"

"Have put in the money," finished Rhoda. She closed one hand over the ball of wool. "And it'll go on, more and more money."

"How else can enterprise develop?" asked Quint, controlling his impatience. "But I'll promise you a new home some day, a house as fine as Potter's, horses and a carriage of your own."

He heard with a deep distaste what he was saying—it wasn't worthy to have part in the dream he had cherished. But it might be the only way to reach Rhoda's curious pride.

After a moment she asked, "Here, in this settlement?"

"Of course, here. Where else could it be? But it won't be the settlement we know now. It'll prosper—grow to city-size. There'll be paved streets and shops, industries, people."

Rhoda laughed, and said, "I'll be as old as old Sarah when that time comes!"

Yet there was a kind of softness in her voice. Her head bent to her work. Quint saw the curve of her neck, a young curve. He crossed to her chair, put his hand on her neck, below the braids of dark hair. He said, unsteadily, "Rhoda, we loved each other once—can't we...?" Then a cold fear rushed over him, silencing him. If she recoiled from him—if, maimed in her eyes, he had become so physically repulsive to her that she must shrink from his touch...

She did not move. She did not speak. For a moment she seemed not to breathe. Then she lifted her needles and went on with her knitting.

Quint's hand dropped to his side. He stood a moment, looking down at her, then turned about and left the room.

But he felt a difference in her manner toward him the next day, which she hadn't done for a long time, now. "When the next merchant wagon comes in—if you'll buy some cotton cloth, I'll make up a shirt for you." And after breakfast she asked him to turn the ground by the kitchen door, for some dower seeds old Sarah had brought to her.

He was glad he had told her, for the day proved that talk of the new ship was getting around. One and another spoke of it to Quint in the taproom. Some had gone down to the Scajaquada to see the hull there in the water. Most of the Black Rock settlement took a personal pride in it. "Built right here on the river! Their enthusiasm over the brig was combined with their enthusiasm over the promise of bumper crops through summer, of the price of oxen in the fall, after a summer of good grazing."

But Alton came in a few days later. He rarely stopped at the tavern. He harbored his distaste farther down the river and left to his younger brother, Josiah, the job of overseeing the change of their cargoes to the schooners, upriver. He was an old man, with shrewd eyes, like two black-headed pins driven into the bones of his weatherbeaten face. He shook Quint's hand cordially, but Quint suspected he had a reason for coming other than friendliness.

They sat at a table in a corner of the room. Alton said, "This brig, Darby, Josiah and I looked it over from the river last evening. What are you going to do with it?"

"Sell it," Quint answered, smiling at the obviousness of the old man's approach.

"Pretty costly plaything, ain't it? She'll take quite a few hands to man her—where're you going to find 'em?"

"Along the frontier, I hope. Ought to be some with a liking for it in their veins. The young ones."

Then the question came. "How much'll you sell it for, Darby?"

"It isn't for sale."

Alton made a noise in his throat that was meant for a laugh. He got to his feet, held his hand out to Quint. "Well, when it is, let me know. I'd have more use for it than you, man."

A tavern keeper, the man meant. But Quint only smiled more broadly. Let Alton find out later to what use he was going to put the brig.

Postal Rates May Be Hiked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP)—

President Truman told his congressional leaders today he is sending Congress a message this week recommending increases in second class postal rates.

Second class mail covers the publication field—such as daily and weekly newspapers and magazines.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) and other congressional leaders who met with Mr. Truman at the White House declined to discuss details for the president's message, which he expects to send to both houses by Thursday.

Rayburn told reporters he did not believe the draft of the message has been completed.

Dewey Juices Up Eisenhower Boom

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP)—

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and other supporters apparently are counting on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to wind up this year his job as commander of the North Atlantic defense force.

Dewey told friends on a weekend visit here he thinks the five-year general will be available for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952.

This would give Eisenhower less than a year to organize and get into effective operation a defense force that is little more than a paper army now.

Demonstrations Made on Swine

Carcasses of Hogs Examined Here

Members of the Swine Breeders and Feeders Association at a meeting held Monday evening completed the first of the swine grading demonstrations. This work is being carried on in the county as a part of the program of the Swine Improvement Association.

On Thursday afternoon of last week members of the association, particularly the directors, sorted and graded three different lots of hogs at the Producers' Livestock Cooperative Association. The hogs were brought in by three farmers, Edward McClure, Ray Fisher and Herbert Perrell.

Under the direction and study of W. H. Bruner and Herbert Barnes of the Ohio State University, six hogs, two from each lot, were selected, taken to the university and slaughtered. Information was determined on the six hogs relative to such things as percent of live weight in the four primal cuts. This included skin, hams, trimmed loin, trimmed belly and New York shoulder.

Other determinations made were percent of chilled carcass weight in the three lean cuts, percent of live weight in fat trimmings, fat back thickness, cut out value per cwt. of live weight, and dressing percent.

Carcasses Examined

Some twenty farmers gathered at the Farm Bureau machinery building Monday evening, when Bruner and Barnes returned with the actual half carcasses of two of these hogs, a number of different wholesale cuts and the complete slaughter tests on all six hogs.

Some very interesting results were brought out on these six slaughtered hogs, which were studied by the men present.

The group was particularly interested in the items of the percent of the live weight of the four primal cuts. Two of the hogs slaughtered showed over 49 percent of this valuable part of the carcass. Other things particularly looked for were fat back trimmings and percent of live weight in the fat trimmings.

The second grading demonstration will be held Thursday afternoon, March 15, at the Union Stockyards. On Monday evening, March 19, a similar carcass demonstration and study will be held at the Denton Implement Co.

Following the educational work on these demonstrations, some actual grading will probably take place on a number of hogs sold here in the county, County Agent Montgomery states.

(Continued from Page One) The new amendment. Minutes after learning that Utah had approved, Nevada senators voted 16 to 1 for ratification. The assembly had approved earlier, 29 to 12.

At least two other states were also near ratification votes -- Minnesota and Maryland. The Minnesota legislature had suspended the rules to schedule a vote this afternoon in the hope of becoming the 36th and deciding state to act.

The amendment has been before the states since March, 1947.

After an initial spurt of ratification votes, interest in the proposal apparently lagged and only

Family Night In Bloomingburg

170 Turn Out for Lions Club Fete

Approximately 170 men, women and children were in attendance at "Family Night," held Monday night by the Bloomingburg Lions Club.

Raymond Stephens and Co., magicians, entertained the Lions club members and their guests with a one and a half hour program put on in the Bloomingburg High School auditorium.

The youngsters got a special thrill out of the tricks of magic demonstrated by Stephens, who is also a fireman and a barber in Washington C. H.

An appeal for blood donors to the Red Cross bloodmobile unit Thursday, when it pays the county its next visit in the American Legion Hall, was made by Howard Foster. Several Lions club members signed up to give blood. An effort will be made to obtain 125 pints from this county.

Announcement of a schedule of rehearsals for members of the cast which will stage the Bloomingburg Lions minstrel was announced. The minstrel is to be put on March 8 and 9 in the Bloomingburg High School auditorium.

Guests were introduced Monday night by Frank Slager and Gordon Lynch.

The committee consisted of Arthur Engle, Omar Rapp, Raymond Scott and Lloyd Iden.

Ham, sweet potatoes, jello salad, mixed vegetables, ice cream and cookies were served by Mrs. Delbert Looker and her helpers.

24 states had acted favorably by the start of this year.

Then came another rush, bringing approval by legislatures of a dozen states within the past few weeks.

When it submitted the amendment to the states, Congress provided that to be effective it would be ratified by the required number within seven years, or before March 26, 1954.

The amendment when proposed was generally regarded as a rebuke to the late President Franklin Roosevelt, who won four terms in the White House. He thus broke a two-term precedent set by George Washington, who declined to run for a third term.

James A. Farley, who split with Mr. Roosevelt over the third term, said he was gratified that the amendment had been ratified.

The U. S. Bureau of Land Management estimates the spruce budworm has killed enough timber to build 10,000,000 five-room houses.

Ward Meet Called For Civilian Defense

Civilian defense personnel of the third ward is to meet in the Dayton Power and Light Co. building auditorium at 7 P. M. Thursday.

Chester W. Trout, the ward chairman, said the meeting is "just to get acquainted," but he implied that there would be some serious discussion of several problems. He did not, however, go into any detail about what is on the program or what problems would be taken up.

Chairman Trout, a veteran of the first World War, said the meetings were for all captains and block workers. He indicated there was still a need for more help when he said "all volunteers for civilian defense will be more than welcome" to attend the meeting.

This is one of the first strictly ward meetings of this kind to be held here. Others are expected to follow. Its pattern also is expected to be studied carefully, too, as a possible guide for subsequent ward gatherings.

Chairman Trout did not say whether Capt. C. Virgil Sexton, the county chairman, would address the meeting or whether any technical discussions are to be held.

The chairman said simply "this meeting is important and we would like to have every one of the captains and workers and other volunteers there."

The meeting is to start promptly at 7 P. M. the chairman said and added that "it will be pushed right along without wasting any time... it should not last very long."

Roads Posted In this Area

25 Percent Cut in Loads Ordered

Several of the state routes in Fayette County have been posted against full loads, and a 25 percent reduction in loads has been ordered by the State Highway Department.

The roads posted already have been subjected to severe damage by heavy loaded trucks.

Regarding the posting of many state routes in Ohio, Highway Director T. J. Kauer says:

"The thaw and excessive moisture have rendered certain state highways liable to irreparable damage by heavy traffic. We have already experienced many cases where heavy loads have caused pavement failure on routes which have been weakened by thaws.

"It is our responsibility to protect the roads to the best of our ability, and at this season it becomes necessary to reduce limits on many of our roads."

The following state routes in Fayette County have been posted: Route 277, from the Pickaway County line north through Waterloo to the Madison County line.

Route 729, from the Clinton County line northward across U. S. 35, thence northward through Jeffersonville and to the Madison County line.

Route 734, from the Greene County line eastward through Jeffersonville to the Bloomingburg and Sedalia Road (route 35).

Reports are current that one reason some of the roads in Fayette County have been heavily damaged is the routing of big loads through this county to avoid State Highway Patrol weighing stations.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Hereby certifies that pursuant to the Federal Deposit Insurance Act of the Congress of the United States each depositor is provided maximum deposit insurance of $10,000 in

In testimony whereof, I witness my signature and the seal of the Corporation this 21st day of September, 1950.

The Washington Savings Bank
Washington Court House, Ohio

January 22, 1951

Mr. A. H. Finley, president of the Washington Savings Bank today announced receipt from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Washington, D. C. of a new certificate of membership giving effect to the recent increase in insurance coverage to $10,000. The Washington Savings Bank has been a member of FDIC since August 1935.

Mr. Finley pointed out that this insurance does not cost depositors of the bank a single penny. The surplus of Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which now exceeds $1,300,000,000, in addition to all deposit insurance losses and operating expenses of the Corporation has been paid in by the 13,650 insured banks of the Nation in the form of annual assessments based on their total deposits.

"Under the leadership of its Chairman, Maple T. Harl, and his predecessors," Mr. Finley said, "the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has made a great contribution to the soundness and solvency of our banking system and to the safety and security of bank depositors. It has been seven years since any depositor of an insured bank suffered a loss, a new record for depositor safety in this Nation."

A letter from FDIC Chairman Harl accompanied the certificate. It read in part:

"This certificate can be displayed in your banking rooms with pride in the accomplishments of a Corporation in which you and 13,600 other banking institutions are banded together for the protection of your depositors' funds.

"Each bank can take a great share of the credit for the fact that nearly seven years have passed since an insured bank was placed in receivership. Improved bank management coupled with diligent bank supervision, plus Federal deposit insurance have brought to our nation an era free from the specter of losses to depositors and eliminated the dread of and the devastating results from bank runs.

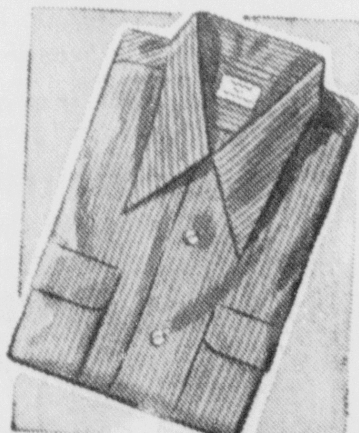

"This Corporation has made an outstanding contribution to this marvelous record, furthermore, has accumulated a surplus of nearly one and a half billion dollars as additional protection against any and all future contingencies which might in any way affect the solvency and stability of the dual banking system."
